Unraveling Social Dilemmas

Mayorga's "La Paz Perpetua" ("Perpetual Peace") offers a scathing critique of society's obsession with appearances and the dangers of complacency. Conejero's "La piedra oscura" ("The Dark Stone") takes us on a haunting journey through the shadows of Spain's past, exploring the legacy of violence and repression during the Franco dictatorship. In "La casa de los espíritus" ("The House of Spirits"), Ignacio Amestoy delves into the complexities of family relationships and the enduring power of memory.

Embracing the Absurd and the Surreal

"El pintor de batallas" ("The Battle Painter") by Alfredo Sanzol unveils the surreal and absurd, challenging conventions and inviting us to question the nature of reality. Paloma Pedrero's "No dormiré" ("I Shall Not Sleep") explores the fragile boundaries between truth, illusion, and madness.
