Kiersten: Employers value candidates who demonstrate strong communication and interpersonal skills, adaptability, a positive attitude, and a willingness to learn and grow. Additionally, they are looking for individuals who are passionate about their work and can bring something unique to the organization.

Kiersten: Networking is crucial in the job search process. Attend industry events, join professional organizations, and connect with people on LinkedIn. When networking, focus on building genuine relationships and providing value to others. Remember to follow up regularly and stay top-of-mind with your connections.

Kiersten: To stand out, it's important to differentiate yourself through your personal brand. Create a strong online presence, develop a unique elevator pitch that highlights your value proposition, and showcase your expertise through thought leadership and content creation.

Kiersten: Job search can be a challenging journey, but it's important to stay persistent and not give up. Focus on your strengths, celebrate your successes, and seek support from your network. Remember that the right opportunity will come along if you remain focused and determined.
