

Unveiling the Global Tapestry of Race: A Journey with "Toward a Global Idea of Race: Barrows Lectures"

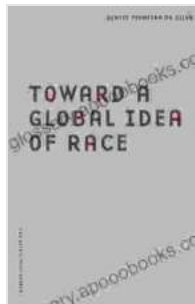

Race, a concept that has shaped human history for centuries, remains a topic of immense complexity and global relevance. In his groundbreaking work, "Toward a Global Idea of Race: Barrows Lectures," renowned scholar Robert Bernasconi embarks on an intellectual odyssey to unravel the intricate web of race and its implications across cultures and societies.

Challenging Traditional Notions

Bernasconi boldly challenges traditional understandings of race, arguing that it is not a biological reality but rather a social construct that has varied significantly throughout history and across different regions of the world. He delves into the historical evolution of racial categories, tracing their origins in ancient Greece and Rome to their use in colonial and scientific discourses.
