Vis and Ramin is a classic of Persian literature that has captivated readers for centuries. A beautiful and tragic tale of love, loss, and redemption, it tells the story of two young lovers who are separated by fate and circumstance.

The story begins in the kingdom of Samangan, where Vis, the son of the king, falls in love with Ramin, the daughter of a nobleman. Their love is forbidden, however, as Vis is already betrothed to the daughter of a neighboring king.

Despite the obstacles, Vis and Ramin continue to meet in secret. They share their love of poetry, music, and art, and they dream of a future together.

But their happiness is short-lived. Vis's father discovers their affair and banishes Ramin from the kingdom. heartbroken, Vis follows her into exile.

The two lovers travel together through the desert, facing many hardships along the way. They are finally reunited, but their happiness is again shattered when Vis is killed in battle.

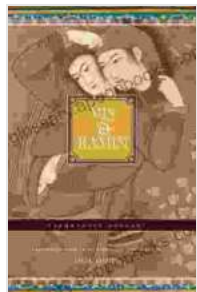

Ramin is devastated by Vis's death, and she vows to spend the rest of her life mourning her beloved. She builds a tomb for Vis and dedicates herself to prayer and meditation.

In the end, Ramin finds peace and redemption in her faith. She is reunited with Vis in heaven, where they live happily ever after.

Vis and Ramin is a timeless story of love, loss, and redemption. It is a story that has been told and retold for centuries, and it continues to captivate readers today.

Dick Davis's new translation of Vis and Ramin is a faithful and elegant rendering of the original text. It captures the beauty and power of the story, and it makes it accessible to a new generation of readers.

If you are looking for a classic love story that will stay with you long after you finish it, then I highly recommend Vis and Ramin. It is a story that will touch your heart and make you believe in the power of love.
